The Staunton Development Company.

Without ostentation and in an even, smooth, business manner, the Staunton Development Company is conducting its large aims forward to assured success. It will bring an immense amount of capital and large numbers of the best men of talent and energy to this favored location for investment. Investments not only in lots and suburban homes, but in many industries for which the opportunities are nowhere surpassed.

It is something worth while to consider as the situation here is viewed. To locate with all the animating life pertaining to new and stirring progress in an old and prosperous town, holding in its grasp the varied elements which have caused it to be styled "Queen City of the Valley,"—and equipped as it is with all its advantages of trade and commerce, its elegant educational institutions, and its watchful, advancing municipal government, present opportunities but seldom found.

The Staunton Development Company wisely surveyed the opening field, and confiding in its superiority have made known the facts which will exceed the highest expectation. The immediate advantages to be utilized for the growth of a large and prosperous city are not only to invite foreign capital and population.—They are surrounded with the choicest of agricultural districts which are capable of great enlargement in fruitful production.—All the supplies in breadstuffs, meats, fruits, and the comforts of good living abound, we might say, to an unlimited extent. All these facts are made known through this Company, and the thousands seeking just such opportunities for the future realize the truth when they visit the goodly city, and not a few will fix here their permanent abode. The Company is now advancing into the second chapter of its progress. Engineering and art, in illustrating scenery, locations, and sketchin the landscape where industries will be planted, and residences and villas and resorts for the thousands who seek the freshnees of the mountain and Valley countries will rise, will soon present Staunton and its surroundings as they never were before.—Every inhabitant should give his approving support to the Staunton Development Company, not that it is necessary to success, but that its achievements may be the greater, and their interests larger and more advanced.
